

Privacy Statement

Cressall is committed to preserving your privacy.

This privacy policy is for our site www.cressall.com. Cressall believes that when you share your personal information with us, it is our responsibility to live up to your trust by preserving your privacy. We have created this privacy statement in order to demonstrate our firm commitment to this principle and to make clear what happens to any information we collect.

Cressall's commitment to your privacy

We will not share information you have given us with other parties unless you have explicitly given us permission to do so. We will not send you advertising materials or other communications from any third party unless you have specifically requested them or joined a mailing list, or we are mandated to do so by law (for example, in the case of a product recall). We will adhere to industry standards in keeping your identifying information safe from unauthorized access.

The information we collect

We may use your IP address (a number that identifies you on the internet, the way a phone number identifies you on the phone system) to help diagnose problems with our server, and to administer our web site. Your IP address is used to help identify you. Our order forms, e-mail newsletter and warranty registration forms require you to give us contact information (such as name and e-mail address) and financial information (credit card information).

We may use customer contact information from the registration form to send you information about our company, its products, and related news when requested to do so. Your contact information is also used to contact you when necessary. All information collected through these forms is held by Cressall in the strictest confidence, and will not be shared with other parties. Financial information that is collected is used to invoice you for products and services.

Legal Disclaimer

We reserve the right to disclose your personally identifiable information if required by law and when we believe that disclosure is necessary to protect our rights and/or to comply with a judicial proceeding, court order, or legal process served on our Web site.

Changes in this Privacy Statement

If we decide to change our privacy policy, we will post those changes to this privacy statement, the homepage, and other places we deem appropriate so that you are aware of what information we collect, how we use it, and under what circumstances, if any, we disclose it. We reserve the right to modify this privacy statement at any time. Any changes to this policy will be added here.

Changing your information

If you have any questions about this privacy statement, the practices of this site, or your dealings with this web site, please contact us: sales@cressall.com